[BOOKS] ★ Rake's Ransom and a Loyal Companion (Signet Regency Romance) By Barbara Metzger – Soccerjerseys-wholesale.co

Sonia Randolph, called Sunny by her loved ones, has always been the apple of her father, the Squire s eye Unlike her proper elder sister, Sonia loves to romp about the country visiting the tenants and lighting up her father s life Her maternal grandmother, the Dowager Duchess of Atterbury, thinks Sonia is a hoyden and is determined Sunny will make a match worthy of the family name so when Sunny s oldest brother marries and sets up his nursery and Sunny s father decides to remarry as well, Sunny is sent off to London for her come out In London, despite her grandmother s best intentions, Sunny remains her usual cheery and kind self Always at her side loving her and protecting her is her faithful dog Fitz Fitz gets lost and causes a chain of events resulting in a broken leg Major Darius Conover, the Earl of Warebourne, brings Fitz home and mends the broken leg Fitz is cheerful company for Darius three young nieces, recently orphaned and left to his care When Fitz is well enough to find his way home, he introduces Sunny and the Major Sunny instantly feels sorry for the wounded war hero and tries to befriend him Unfortunately, her most prominent suitor, Lord Ansel Berke, brings up an old scandal about his sister and Conover which had resulted in Conover's being shunned by polite society Sunny doesn't believe the old scandal and continues to see Conover, growing ever closer to him and his nieces but old scandals die hard and the path to Sunny's future happiness is bumpy Through it all, her dog Fitz narrates the story, contemplates the odd mating behavior of humans and tries to help Sunny find her life mate Fitz is an intelligent dog who questions philosophical issues such as whether there is a heaven, why humans only worship one god, and of course, human social behavior I'm a huge dog lover and I am all for literate dogs but Fitz is well read in Greek and Roman literature, which I am not, so I found it hard to follow and hard to relate Sunny's story to Fitz's favorite stories A third person omniscient narrator shares the telling of the story with Fitz which is a little confusing Sunny is a fun heroine, much like Jacey in Rake's Ransom I think the two of them should get together and take London by storm Darius isn't very well developed and I never got a sense of why Sunny loved him other than her instinct to take care of him The ending drags on way too long but ends satisfactorily.

These took me forever to get through, and in all honesty I could not finish the second book The blurb descriptions are misleading, also Rake's Ransom is not so much about politics as about family and neighbors And Loyal companion is partially narrated by a dog, but might as well be a carbon copy of Rake's ransom Now I like Barbara Metzger's writing, these two just weren't what I wanted to read at the moment, I suspect I'll keep reading her but I probably wont be rereading these.

Both of these contain all that I love most about Barbara Metzger humor, colorful characters, enchanting children and pets that are not only contribute to the humor, but also often serve as deus ex machinas This is especially true in Loyal Companion where Fitz the dog has his own voice and chapters.
